

PHP and Java Programmer

We are looking for someone who is able to programme in PHP and other web-enabled languages, potentially including Java. You will be involved in a project to develop an analytical tool that can be run from our website.

A high level of experience in web programming is not essential, but basic knowledge is a requirement, and you will be a fast learner with an interest and excitement for doing things in innovative ways.

Database experience would be an advantage, particularly MySQL, as well as some knowledge of analytical/research techniques.